lens analysis of a short story

Use close reading of “The Starfruit Tree” by Ashwak Fardoush, in conversation with the lens text “The Women’s Movement in Bangladesh: A Short History and Current Debates” by Sohela Nazneen, to analyze the relationship “The Starfruit Tree” constructs between gender and identity. Use literary terms and key terms to support your analysis; define those terms precisely, with reference to the secondary text. You should make your thesis as narrow and focused as possible and attempt to think through the contextual lens provided by Nazneen’s article.

multimodal researched argument

Use a variety of contextual, theoretical, and argument sources to produce a PowerPoint presentation or equivalent video to make an argument that answers an interpretive question that you raise about Things Fall Apart by Chinua Achebe. Support your argument with close reading, using secondary texts to define your terms precisely. Begin with the cultural/historical and theoretical texts that we studied in class and refer to at least two scholarly sources that you find through original research in the QC Library Database.

In order to produce your researched argument, you will also develop a complete annotated bibliography and compose a cover letter that thoughtfully reflects on the writing practices and critical faculties that you gained in the course.
